

Editor's Introduction

Volume 23, 2022-2023

Every year, Juniata Voices publishes a selection of the invited speakers, Faculty speakers, and undergraduate speakers at Juniata College in Huntingdon, Pennsylvania. This volume includes texts from the 2022-2023 academic year that represent a range of voices. Some of the talks are presented much as they were delivered in person; others are edited to resemble more traditional academic papers.

I want to thank everyone whose persistence contributed to this volume. As always, Juniata Voices relies on the support of the Provost's Office: Lauren Bowen and Marissa Fouse. Tracy White provided excellent administrative help. Zoe Watson '24 and Emily Dyer '23 served as our Juniata Associates. In that role, they recorded and transcribed talks and assisted with other editorial tasks. We also thank Cole Handrahan, whose videographic and film editing skills are particularly appreciated. The dedicated and talented members of the editorial board patiently honed and polished. Any remaining errors fall to me. I thank everyone for their determination to get the volume out and their good humor while doing the work. It has been a true pleasure to work with this team.

We wish to recognize the contribution of Jack Barlow, who after this year leaves the board after 15+ years of consistent contribution. Thank you, Jack!! Thanks also go to the staffs of the Baker Institute and Kaitlyn Granger of the CIE for their support of the publication of the contributors on the war in Ukraine.
